Gallery 222, Malvern

JUROR'S STATEMENT

It was an honor to juror the Annual Juried Painting Show at the Cheltenham Center for the Arts. I would like to thank Margaret Griffin for this opportunity. Being an owner/curator of Gallery222 in Malvern since 2016, I have an appreciation for all genres of Art. My first critique when approaching a piece of original art is the execution of form and shape, along with the use of light, value and chroma. If it's a landscape, I always look for the atmospheric quality which is so difficult to capture.

If that is executed pleasingly, I move on to the composition itself. Does the composition have something to say? Is there a story that captures the viewer? Is there an emotional journey the artist wants the viewer to embark upon? If the composition is of an ordinary scene or maybe a still life, did the artist make it more beautiful in some way?

Lastly, I look at the marketability of the piece. This is crucial when running a small business but today as a juror, I put less emphasis on this step and truly let the art sing its own song.

There were many songs sung today in such a beautiful way. My job was not easy choosing the entries and award winners. There were so many beautiful pieces. You are all so talented.

Please keep your efforts going, especially during this difficult time, Society needs positivity. I love Autumn de Forest's simple quote, "My goal as an artist is to create art that makes people look at the world in a different way."
